Performance & House

Performance #4 went well. In the first act, we had absolutely no problems. During Johanna's Sequence Act 2, towards the beginning of the act, the chair stopped working. It was dropping on its own and dropping without Patty triggering the step lever. Amy and the deck crew quickly came up with a plan on what to do if the chair kept doing this. We decided it would be best not to drop the shoot with the chair dropping on its own. Abby, Kyla, and Lenne talked with the actors who this would affect and put the plan into action. For Beadles' death, Patty had tested the chair before, and it didn't fall, and when Sammy sat in it, it didn't fall. However, the shoot was already down, and Patty didn't trigger the lever, and it fell on its own. From there on out, it was decided we weren't going to use the chair the rest of the show. Patty brought a stool that the judge could sit on, and for the beggar's death, he dragged her off. For the judge's death, Patrick Reagan just walked off. It all worked out in the end, and now we know that if anything does go wrong, we have a plan that works and can be executed. Shoutout to Abby, Kyla, Lenne, Patty B, Sammy, Evie, and Patrick Reagan for being absolutely fantastic when problems come their way and acting efficiently and quickly!

Technical

BACKSTAGE:

- Shout out to all the crew backstage for their communication tonight when the chair stopped working!

COSTUMES:

- Ava's wig bun fell during Act 2, but Lenne fixed it! Amy will look at all the wigs tomorrow during her practicum and work!

LIGHTS:

- No notes, thank you!

PROPS/SCENERY:

- Another Ale tankard broke. The deck crew has placed it in the Stage Left prop box.
- Look above at Performance and House notes.

SOUND:

- No notes, thank you!

STAGE/COMPANY MANAGEMENT:

- No notes, thank you!

VENUE OPERATIONS/HOUSE MANAGEMENT:

- Sarah was a great house manager!
- Could we put in another work order for the thermostat in the green room? It still isn't working, and it is freezing in there.
